WANTED The city's Guns and Gangs unit issued a photograph yesterday of a city man they say is their suspect in an attempted murder last month.

Police say they want the public's help to find 24-year-old Abdullahi, after a man was discovered in the hallway of a Westboro apartment building on Scott Street on Sept. 20, suffering from multiple stab wounds to his back and chest.

The victim was severely intoxicated and was transported to hospital with serious but non-life threatening injuries.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the Ottawa Police Guns and Gangs Unit at 613-236-1222, ext 5050.

Martin goes stumping

Afghan mission's price tag blasted

Election 2008

POLITICS The Conservative government deliberately misled Canadians about the mounting cost of Canada's Afghan mission, federal New Democrats said after a new report pegged the price tag at up to $18.1 billion before it ends in 2011.

"They have tried to hide the real cost," NDP

Leader Jack Layton said yesterday after the parliamentary budget officer released a report that tallied the cost of the war — and also said that successive Liberal and Conservative governments

Costs

- The report by Kevin Page, Parliament's independent budget officer, suggests that Canadians have been kept in the dark about the true costs of the Afghanistan mission, a tally that could top $18.1 billion by a planned pullout in 2011 — or about $1,500 per household.

were not upfront with Canadians.

Harper defended the financial cost yesterday as the price of ensuring soldiers and diplomats are well-protected in their work.

"When we have men and women in uniform, diplomats and development workers that are putting their lives on the line, the government will spend what is necessary to make sure they are safe and successful," he said in Richmond, B.C.

And he denied that the government was deliberately shielding the cost of the mission from the public.

Separatists make list, but PSAC shuns Conservatives

TIM WIECLAWSKI

Union approved

Federal candidates endorsed by PSAC in Ottawa-Gatineau

In Ottawa:

- Paul Dewar, New Democratic Party, Ottawa-Centre;
- Marc Godbout, Liberal, Ottawa-Orléans;
- Marlene Rivier, NDP, Ottawa-West-Nepean;
- Dan Boudria, Liberal, Gleggarry-Prescott-Russell;

In Outaouais:

- Trevor Haché, NDP, Ottawa-Vanier.
- Richard Nadeau, Bloc Québécois, Gatineau;
- Pierre Ducasse, NDP, Hull-Aylmer;
- Céline Brault, NDP, Pontiac;
- Mario Laframboise, Bloc Québécois, Argenteuil-Mirabel-Papineau.

Local New Democrats, Liberals and even separatist Bloc Québécois candidates all received endorsements from the capital's largest union yesterday, but no Conservatives made the grade.

Maria Fitzpatrick, a regional executive with the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), which represents about 54,000 Ottawa members, defended the union's decision to shun the Tories, saying they didn't participate in the debates or the questionnaires upon which the union based their endorsements in nine Ottawa-Gatineau ridings.

"We were certainly prepared to consider endorsing Conservative candidates, but they didn't ... show up," said Fitzpatrick. "We have ... a huge constituency. If someone is running for public office, you'd want to address a group that large." Quebec Conservatives Lawrence Cannon and Denis Tasse did meet with PSAC, she said, but only after the endorsements had been ratified.

The union understands that some of its own members are Conservatives, and stressed that its endorsements are only recommendations.

"We are passing on these recommendations to them with all humility. We are not giving any orders," Fitzpatrick said.

Conservatives responded by saying they respect public servants and trust them to individually judge the party on its merits and its platform, not on the recommendation of union leaders.

"John has enjoyed a great working relationship with PSAC during our time in government," said Chris Day, a spokesman for Ottawa West-Nepean MP, John Baird.

"We find it curious,

Election 2008

though, that the largest union representing federal public servants is endorsing candidates who want to break up this country."

That was a reference to the union leadership endorsing two Bloc Québécois candidates.

But Fitzpatrick said the union's main consideration is whether the candidates have shown support for a strong public sector.

NDP candidate Marlene Rivier, whom PSAC endorsed in Baird's riding, hoped the support translated into votes next week.

"PSAC is a well respected organization. I'm sure members will take to heart the recommendation that they came up with," she said.

"I know their endorsement is very meaningful and is based on issues that PSAC see as important."

High-profile aid on hustings

Some city candidates imported some familiar faces to help fire up their local campaigns yesterday, although political experts wonder how effective the practice is.

Former Prime Minister Paul Martin, Foreign Affairs Minister David Emerson and Sheila Copps, a former Liberal deputy prime minister, were all stumping in different parts of Ottawa yesterday as various city candidates looked to make a last minute push before decision day on Tuesday.

Melissa Haussman, an associate professor in Carleton University's Department of Political Science, said adding famous faces to a local campaign has impact, but likely won't sway ridings where a candidate has a strong lead.

"But it indicates that these folks are putting a lot of effort into it and are doing what they can to sway the vote in their favour," she said.

Several shoppers at the Carlingwood mall took a double take when former PM Martin pressed a campaign brochure into their hand. Martin was helping Liberal candidate David Pratt in his bid to oust environment minister John Baird in Ottawa West-Nepean.

Haussman doubts that will happen, but she respected the attempt. "I can't imagine that it's all that common to have a former Prime Minister ... out campaigning on your behalf. I may be wrong, but it does seem pretty high profile and they do seem like carefully targeted ridings.

"Maybe it will sway a few votes but it's pretty hard to cut into the lead that Baird's got."

Asked if he thought Pratt could dislodge the incumbent, Martin said Baird, like the rest of the Conservatives, hasn't done enough in government.

"We're into some difficult times right now," said Martin. "The economy is utmost in Canadians' minds."

Pratt was thrilled to have Martin's support.

"Mr. Martin is one of the people I respect most in the world, personally and professionally," said Pratt. "It means a tremendous amount to me and to my workers."

Emerson, who is not seeking re-election, rushed from meetings regarding an auditor's report on the cost of the Afghanistan mission to endorse Ottawa Centre Conservative candidate Brian McGarry.

"We need more Brian McGarrys, but let's start by getting this one into Parliament and getting the other chap currently occupying the seat out of there," said Emerson, who was joined by former MP David Kilgour.

McGarry said having two former Liberal cabinet ministers endorse a Conservative "speaks well for the direction this nation is taking."

Other Ottawa Liberals were looking for high-profile help, as well. Earlier in the day, Copps joined Penny Collette to meet and greet local residents and public servants. Collette is in a race to unseat incumbent Paul Dewar in the Ottawa Centre riding.

City hall shakeup poses questions

Cutting costs

• The total severance costs for the three senior management jobs that Ottawa cut on Wednesday is $900,000, but the savings to taxpayers will total $600,000 annually after the packages are paid off in two years.

The layoffs affect Richard Hewitt, Deputy Manager of Public Works and Steve Finnamore who managed Business Transformation. City Clerk Pierre Page is leaving voluntarily on Dec. 1, and Ottawa Mayor Larry O'Brien calls the cuts "just the beginning."

More job cuts are expected at city hall, with a total of 400 on the chopping block in the next budget.

"What happens now is a new ... consolidated senior management team, will now evaluate which of the third-level managers, which positions there are redundant now that we're running a more streamlined operation and then it will percolate to the next level, with the ultimate goal of creating a more citizen-centric service at city hall," said O'Brien.

The city plans to implement a "more citizen-focused bureaucracy" that the mayor says will be leaner and more efficient.

CTVOTTAWA.CA

The president of Ottawa's largest municipal union doubts the effectiveness of a major shake-up within the city bureaucracy to reduce costs without affecting the quality of services.

A day after council announced that three senior management positions had been eliminated, Ottawa and District Labour Council president Sean McKenny said yesterday that cutting jobs arbitrarily and not expecting impacts on services is "ludicrous."

"I don't think the residents ... are going to put up with those things, but at the end of the day we'll see what happens," he said.

"I think the whole idea of it needs to be pulled into question. Is it the best way to go about reducing costs? I'm not so sure it is."

Councillor Diane Deans said she's confident the move would prove successful, but expressed concern over longer-term succession planning if ever the two remaining deputy city managers leave their positions.

"Both Nancy Schepers and Steve Kanellakos know the city organization inside out and are really true leaders," she said. "I'm not sure those jobs would be so easy to fill with just one person."

Capital ward's Clive Doucet is worried that the responsibilities now thrust upon the two deputy city managers and the city manager, Kent Kirkpatrick, would be overwhelming.

"I have trouble understanding how one person will have more time when he has less senior executives," he said.

Companies put muscle into United Way drive

With all the non-profit organizations out there competing for charity dollars, staff at two local companies found a way to make giving fun.

Hydro Ottawa and Enbridge Gas Distribution raised awareness for United Way/Centraide Ottawa yesterday after teams from both companies put their strength to the test in a truck pull.

While yesterday's event was to raise awareness for the organization's annual campaign, Hydro Ottawa raised more than $8,800 in an internal truck pull challenge last week and the corporation matched the funds.

The nine-member Hydro Ottawa team hauled the 18,000-pound, single-bucket truck to victory in the friendly rivalry yesterday, but director of customer care and conservation at Hydro Ottawa Dave McKendry said that United Way is really the winner.

"This is all about awareness for the United Way," said McKendry.

"It's a great opportunity for employees to participate and to give back to the community they serve," added Will Akkermans, general manager of Enbridge Ottawa.

While the truck pull is over for another year, the competition to raise funds for the non-profit organization continues between the two companies.

Hydro Ottawa is looking to raise $132,000 locally this year after bringing in $127,000 in 2007. Enbridge is aiming to raise over $1 million in its workplace campaign for United Way provincially. Both companies match their employees' donations.

United Way/Centraide Ottawa's goal for this campaign is $31 million. So far, $8,091 million — or 26.1 per cent of the goal — has been raised. The United Way campaign runs through December 2.

City, MOE reportedly agree on spill fine

The City of Ottawa will pay a fine of $500,000 for dumping raw sewage into the Ottawa River.

Lawyers for the city and the Ministry of the Environment have reportedly agreed on the fine. Formal sentencing is expected today.

Officials pled guilty last month to charges the city did not report a massive sewage spill that sent more than a billion litres of waste into the Ottawa River after a valve malfunctioned during the summer of 2006.

The charges, which were filed by Ontario's Environment Ministry under the Water Resources Act, could have resulted in fines as high as $6 million for each day the offences occurred.

The city fired two managers and suspended another employee in September for their involvement with the spill, which led to a 45-day beach closure at Petrie Island, in Ottawa's east end. In May, another city employee was also fired for not reporting the sewage spill.

Although several municipal staff members knew the reason for high E. coli levels at the beach, it took nearly two years for them to tell the public.

City officials have since implemented new policies for dealing with and reporting sewage dumps into the Ottawa River. Mayor Larry O'Brien has said construction on a new system to help city workers monitor wastewater valves is ongoing and is expected to be completed by 2009.

Cops cracking down on drivers over holiday

Gatineau police are cracking down on speeders, unsafe drivers and drivers under the influence as a part of a national campaign this Thanksgiving weekend. Starting today through the holiday

Monday, Gatineau police, along with officers with Sûreté du Québec and MRC des Collines, will be working to catch drivers as a part of Operation Impact.

"It's a long weekend and there are a lot of people on the road," said Gatineau Police Constable Isabelle Poirier. According to Poirier, officers will be looking for things like seatbelt use, speeding, driving under the influence and aggressive driving tactics, including following too closely and failing to yield to right of way.

"Normally we see more people, and more speeding and more collisions on long weekends," said Poirier.

"This is a part of an operation for all of Canada."

The participation of the drivers is essential for safe roads, said Mario Harel, interim director of the Gatineau police.

In Outaouais, the motor vehicle collisions killed 37 people and injured 1,572 in 2007.

Tuition rising nationwide

When Liana Salvador thinks about life after university, they aren't happy thoughts. The nursing student would love to be planning her life, budgeting to buy a home or lease a car. Instead, all she can think about is how she will pay off her $40,000-and-growing debt.

Data from Statistics Canada released yesterday shows the cost of tuition is again on the rise. Canadian students attending university, or taking degree programs in college, will pay 3.6 per cent more for tuition, on average, this academic year compared to the previous year.

Trevor Mayoh

The Canadian average for tuition in the 2008-2009 academic year is $4,724 — up from last year's $4,558.

In Ontario, students will shell out nearly $1,000 more than the national average, paying $5,643, an increase of 4.7 per cent.

"As fees increase, I just see my future getting really sad," said second-year Ryerson student Salvador, who is working on her second degree. "I have even contemplated taking a year off, to just work, so I can start paying off my debt."

In Ontario, the average tuition increase this year is just under the five per cent tuition fee cap the province implemented in 2006 to rein in burgeoning tuition costs.

"It's unfortunate to see the levels of Ontario (tuition) raised to this extent," said Trevor Mayoh, president of the Ontario Undergraduate Student Alliance, a group that represents 135,000 undergraduate students at seven institutions across the province.

Ontario's average tuition was second-highest, after Nova Scotia, where fees fell this year due to the implementation of Nova Scotia University Student Bursary Trust in March 2008.

"What's rattling for Ontario, is that a four to five per cent increase annually may lead to Ontario having the highest tuition in Canada very soon," Mayoh said.

Layton sees momentum

NDP Stalled in the polls with the surging Liberals siphoning off support, NDP Leader Jack Layton refuses to accept his third-place party isn't poised to win new seats across the country.

"Everywhere I go I see NDP momentum," Layton, who has been criss-crossing the country, meeting mainly with party supporters, said yesterday.

"Everywhere we've gone the crowds are keen and enthusiastic and they are charging out to talk to other voters. I've got to tell you, as far as I can tell, as the skipper of this particular ship, there is a lot of wind in our sails."

The New Democrats went into the election campaign with high hopes of adding many seats to the 30 they already have in the House of Commons, but the polls shows potential votes are drifting to the Liberals. Even now, with just four days left, Layton refuses to give up on his opening line that he is running to be prime minister.

Dion appeals to NDP, Green voters

SWITCH With the election only a few days away, Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion is stepping up his appeal to NDP and Green party supporters to switch to the Liberals to block the Conservatives.

"Canadians know that Jack Layton will not be elected prime minister on Oct. 14," he said of the NDP leader yesterday.

"A vote for Jack Layton will save only one job, and that is Stephen Harper's."

Speaking at the Halifax Chamber of Commerce, he said: "My goal — in fact my determination — is to replace Stephen Harper."

GREENS Despite a declaration by Green party Leader Elizabeth May earlier in the campaign that she had no deal to throw support behind the Liberals on the final stretch, two Quebec Green candidates, Danielle Moreau in the riding of Longueuil-Pierre-Boucher, and Claude Gaumond of Montmagny-l'Islet-Kamouraska-Rivière-du-Loup, yesterday asked their supporters to back their Liberal competitors.

This week, high school students told Metro that Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion and Conservative PM Stephen Harper seemed “immature” during the leaders’ debate because all they did was insult each other. Anybody listening? Let’s hope so. A Metro Halifax/CTV poll suggests Defence Minister Peter MacKay — you know, the guy with the Raging Granny mom — is going to win his seat handsily, despite the best efforts of Green Leader Elizabeth May. There’s still four days till election day, though, so let’s not plan MacKay’s victory party just yet. And, finally, Premier Rodney MacDonald said yesterday that the Liberals’ Green Shift plan would cost us more than $600 million before tax cuts. The Conservatives’ environment plan is apparently great. Except MacDonald didn’t know what it was.

Fatima Houda-Pépin, the provincial representative for La

Pinière county, jumped into the federal campaign Tuesday, asking the government to stop hesitating and start planning the reconstruction of the Champlain Bridge, which more than 130,000 motorists use every day, making it the most used bridge in Canada. Houda-Pépin argues that it costs $30 million per year to keep the bridge in shape and that its expiry date is set around 2016. She would also like to see a train project be developed around the reconstruction of the bridge.

Calgary followed a national trend with more than 4,000 fewer people showing up to advance polls than the 2006 election. Protesters gathered in front of Calgary city hall Monday, decrying a lack of arts and culture support from Prime Minister Stephen Harper and his Conservative party. And former Calgary Northeast MP Art Hanger expressed dismay over the unravelling scrap between independent conservative candidate Roger Richard and official Conservative candidate Devinder Shory, guaranteeing a vote-splitting situation.

Alberta and its vilified oilsands gained some new friends on the federal campaign trail this week: Jack Layton and Elizabeth May. Both left-leaning party leaders made conciliatory advances toward Alberta and its dirty oil. Layton said he would leave alone existing plants in the oil region and concentrate on balanced, step-by-step growth of the resource in the future. May said despite her call for a moratorium on oilsands development she would not seek to immediately shut down existing plants. Layton, on a visit to Edmonton, also cited optimism on the campaign front hoping for a breakthrough in the oil province.

It was revealed this week that three B.C. federal candidates have declared bankruptcy in the past — one Conservative, one Liberal and one Green. While Canada's next ruling party won't be decided until Tuesday, Tory Lorne Mayencourt, Liberal Dan Olson and Green candidate Doug Perry will likely never be named finance minister.

China pushes U.S. for 17 'terror suspects'

GUANTANAMO China yesterday pressed the United States to hand over 17 Chinese Muslims held at Guantanamo, describing the men as terror suspects who must face the "sanction of the law."

The 17 have been held at the military prison on a U.S.-controlled part of Cuba since being captured during the U.S.-led campaign in Afghanistan in 2001. They are now caught in a tug-of-war between the Bush administration, U.S. courts and Beijing.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Qin Gang said the men were members of a UN-listed group accused of terrorism. "Through various channels we have presented our solemn stance and demands to the U.S. side," Qin said. "We hope the U.S. will take this seriously and repatriate to China as soon as possible these 17 terror suspects."

Washington has said it cannot return the men, who are wanted on security charges, because they would face persecution.

A U.S. federal appeals court temporarily blocked their release, granting the Bush administration's request to stay a judge's order that they be released into the United States at the end of the week. REUTERS

U.S., Taliban could reconcile

The United States would be prepared to reconcile with the Taliban if the Afghan government pursued talks to end the war, U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates said yesterday.

But he said Washington would not consider any negotiations with al-Qaida.

Gates said reconciliation would be the political end to the conflict in Afghanistan, but it must happen on the Afghan government's terms and the Taliban must commit to subject itself to the sovereignty of the government.

"There has to be ultimately, and I'll underscore ultimately, reconciliation as part of a political outcome to this," Gates said after his first day of NATO meetings in Budapest about the Afghanistan war.

"That's ultimately the exit strategy for all of us."

But Gates said reconciliation efforts could not in-

Britain's military commander in Afghanistan, Brigadier Mark Carleton-Smith, and the top UN official in the country have said the war cannot be won militarily, and that talks with the Taliban will be crucial.

NATO commanders and diplomats have also said for some time that negotiations with the militants will be needed. REUTERS

Sierra Leone Paradise lost

Harriet Turay, 35, stands in front of what remains of her Harris Beach Bar and Restaurant in Freetown on Wednesday. Demolition teams wielding axes and machetes this week smashed up popular beach bars as part of an improvement scheme to develop tourism in Sierra Leone's capital. The Ministry of Tourism and Culture says the beach bars, where aid workers and families relax and play in the sand, contribute to environmental degradation and are an eyesore. Bar owners say they have not been consulted or offered compensation.

Obama nabs four-point lead over McCain: Poll

ELECTION Democrat Barack Obama has built a four-point lead over Republican rival John McCain in the race for the White House, according to a poll released yesterday. Obama led Mc-Cain 48 per cent to 44 per cent among likely voters, up from a two percentage-point advantage for Obama Wednesday.

Obama expanded his advantage among independents to 13 points from nine and his lead among women grew to nine points from seven. He now leads or is even with McCain in all age groups, except those above 70. REUTERS

N. Korea deploys missiles, bars UN

NUCLEAR North Korea deployed more than 10 missiles, apparently for a test launch, a South Korean newspaper said yesterday, and halted UN monitoring of its nuclear complex.

The potentially destabilizing moves followed a U.S. offer to remove North Korea from its terrorism blacklist this month, in an effort to keep a nuclear disarmament pact from falling apart.

It would be an unprecedented test if all of the missiles were fired.

Intelligence sources said they thought the North may launch five to seven, and that North Korea has forbidden ships to sail in part of the Yellow Sea until Oct. 15 in preparation.

The United States urged North Korea not to do anything, including launching missiles, that would make matters worse. REUTERS

Woman likely to join GM ranks

YorkReport

Marty York

marty.york@metronews.ca

A 39-year-old woman ranks as the leading candidate to become the new general manager of the Seattle Mariners.

Kim Ng, assistant GM of the Los Angeles Dodgers, would make major history if she is indeed hired. No woman has run an MLB club before, but the word on Ng around the big leagues is that she is irrefutably qualified. She served in the front office of the Chicago White Sox before being appointed assistant GM of the New York Yankees in 1997. She also worked at AL headquarters in New York.

She joined the Dodgers in 2001 and became the top lieutenant of GM Ned Colletti in 2005.

"I'd hate to lose her," Colletti told me, "but it would be unfair to even try to hold her back. She'll be an outstanding GM, I'm sure. The time has come for a woman to join the fraternity."

While the Dodgers confront the Philadelphia Phillies in the NL Championship Series this week, Ng will be meeting Seattle chiefs about their vacant position.

Among the other

Economy not impacting NHL ticket sales

• The sluggish and uncertain economy have not had a negative impact on the start of the NHL season. At least, not according to average ticket prices for home openers around the league. Ticket merchant Razor-Gator.com is reporting average prices for tickets are up nearly 25 per cent across the league for home openers, with the Vancouver Canucks, Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs, Edmonton Oilers and Calgary Flames all reporting the highest ticket averages.

Mariners candidates, by the way, is Tony LaCava, assistant GM of the Blue Jays.

"But, as far as his chances in Seattle, Tony isn't even in the same ballpark as Kim is," an MLB source told me.

"The only way Kim doesn't get this job is if she comes across foolishly in her interviews, and there's no way that'll happen because she's extremely sharp."

• Ng, incidentally, wouldn't be the first female GM in major professional sports.

That is, if you count the CFL as a major professional sport.

In 1989, Jo-Anne Polak was hired as the GM of the CFL franchise that used to be in Ottawa.

Speaking of the CFL, please visit metronews.ca/cflreport for my latest picks and nuggets on the league.

• And, speaking of baseball GMs, the Tampa Bay Rays' Andrew Friedman is a shoo-in as MLB's top executive this season.

The Rays opened their schedule with the second-lowest payroll ($43.8-million US) in the big leagues, and here they are, facing the Boston Red Sox in the ALCS.

Friedman, 31, is quite the story. He's a former investment analyst who thinks economically first but simultaneously leans on his experienced aides, including former Houston Astros GM Gerry Hunsicker, for their baseball acumen.

"She'll be an outstanding GM, I'm sure."

L.A. Dodgers GM Ned Colletti

Friedman signed Carlos Pena and Eric Hinske, who combined for 51 home runs this season, to puny minor-league contracts before giving them respectable raises.

"We're living proof," Friedman said, "that there's legitimate hope for every sadsack team in sports."

Marty York has been a groundbreaking sports columnist and broadcaster in Canada for decades.

Body of Lies entertains, yet ...

Body of Lies

Director: Ridley Scott

Stars: Leonardo DiCaprio, Russell Crowe

Classification: 18A

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Just like the recent thriller Eagle Eye, Body of Lies is banking on the notion that, through technology, an unseen power can control our every move.

In the case of director Ridley Scott's latest film, that omnipotent surveillance is set in the Middle East, where CIA field agent Roger Ferris (Leonardo DiCaprio) is not only tracking down an Osama bin Laden-like terrorist leader, but he's doing so under the guidance of stay-at-home chief Ed Hoffman (Russell Crowe).

Observing Ferris' moves from the eyes of unmanned spy drones, Hoffman calls the shots over a Bluetooth in America while watching his kids play soccer.

For Ferris, this disconnect is the perfect example of the problems in the Middle East: If those directing the war on terror cannot relate to the situation on the ground, how can they solve the quandary there?

I suppose that's the political point of the film, but three-time Oscar nominee Scott (Gladiator) compromises too much for the sake of the action to really hammer that message home.

Instead, he creates a decent actioner, led by DiCaprio who continues to impress with solid performances in socially conscious projects. As for Crowe — who reportedly gained more than 20 kilograms to play the pudgy puppetmaster — well, there's only so much you can emote when you're pretending to be on the phone.

Although entertaining, Body of Lies — like its cinematic brethren Eagle Eye — carries little legitimacy as an accurate lesson in real world politics.

Express typical sports movie

The Express

Director: Gary Fleder

Stars: Rob Brown, Dennis Quaid

Classification: PG

Rating: ★★★★★

RICK MCGINNIS
Metro Canada

REVIEW Sports movies have become a place where Americans try to talk about race with a regretful glance backwards and an optimistic one forward — if only we could say the same thing about election campaigns.

It's also a movie genre that has become as predictable as horror films. Like so many of its predecessors, Gary Fleder's The Express is based on a true story, sets up its protagonist, his allies and antagonists with ritual care, features a few game sequences heavy on career-ing, quick-cut camera work, and ends with the customary series of end titles to let us know what happened after the credits roll.

It's the story of Ernie Davis, the first African-American winner of the Heisman Trophy, back when everything blacks did — in music or films or sports — became part of the public face of the civil rights struggles of the late '50s and early '60s.

Davis's great skill was as a running back, Jim Brown's successor as Syracuse University's star, and a name that probably would have been as iconic as Brown had he not died of Leukemia just after signing with the Cleveland Browns.

Rob Brown plays Davis as a natural talent with a moral compass, increasingly motivated to use his talent to encourage the aspirations of young blacks, and Fleder doesn't get in the way of letting this become the film's engine.

Dennis Quaid plays the coach of the Syracuse Orangemen, a white man willing to overlook colour if it helps win games, but unwilling to push too hard against the dangerously unstable racial edifices inside and outside the game.

There's nothing in The Express that challenges sports film convention.

City of Ember a smart kids' treat

City of Ember

Director: Gil Kenan

Stars: Saoirse Ronan, Harry Treadaway, Bill Murray

Classification: PG

Rating: ****

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

It says a lot about the current state of our planet when two of the biggest family films of recent months have been set in post-apocalyptic worlds where humans have been forced to abandon the planet due to excessive pollution.

Al Gore must be proud. Granted, City of Ember isn't as poignant or touching as Pixar's Wall-E, but then few films are.

Based on the novel by Jeanne Duprau, City of Ember is set in a world where a small community of humans have been living underground for generations, awaiting the day when the planet will be hospitable enough to return to the surface.

Of course, due to corrupt leadership — currently embodied by a potbellied mayor played by Bill Murray — none of the citizens know the master plan. It's up to two children (brilliantly played by Saoirse Ronan and Harry Treadaway) to uncover the mystery and save the city.

Bill Murray, centre, stars in City of Ember, which is set in a world where humans live underground.

The plot is standard children's fantasy/adventure fare elevated by social and political commentary. Caroline Thompson's script suffers from having to condense a full novel into 90 minutes, but it is still one of the smartest children's screenplays in recent years.

Sophomore director Gil Kenan (Monster House) proves himself to be a major young talent with this movie, infusing it with a directorial style and confidence rarely seen in a filmmaker of such limited experience.

Unfortunately, the movie probably won't reach the audience it deserves because it is simply too somber for the family-matinee crowd. While that tone is entirely appropriate for the subject matter, it won't pack theatres with birthday parties or sell happy meals.

That's unfortunate, because films this intelligent and well-crafted are rarely produced for kids. A little extra humour and exposition probably would have helped make this more palatable for the masses.

Zucker's American Carol is practically laughless

REVIEW Arriving at least one election cycle too late, David Zucker's An American Carol uses the less-than-original tack of using Dickens' Yuletide classic to spoof left-wing politics and filmmaker Michael Moore in particular.

Carol squanders its comedic potential with a near-total absence of laughs. Audiences will be mostly stone-faced, although it's a pretty good bet that Moore will be laughing his ass off.

Zucker, whose credits include such successes in the genre as Airplane! and The Naked Gun, apparently felt that combining right-wing political arguments with cheap gags about Moore's slovenliness was a sure-fire recipe for laughs.

Actually, even Kevin Farley those who find Moore's politics anathema will have some sympathy for the main character, dubbed Michael Malone and played appealingly by Kevin Farley.

A framing device featuring Leslie Nielsen relating the story to kids at a Fourth of July barbecue adds little comedic value, which involve the portly filmmaker — whose latest effort is Die, You American Pigs — being visited by the ghosts of JFK, Gen. George Patton (Kelsey Grammer), George Washington (Jon Voight) and the Angel of Death (country singer Trace Adkins).

The ensuing episodes — including Neville Chamberlain shining Hitler's shoes, the happy slaves at Malone's plantation (there was no Civil War thanks to Lincoln's pacifism) and ACLU zombies being gunned down by a trigger-happy judge (Dennis Hopper) — are meant to depict how leftist ideas inevitably lead to ruin.

Unfortunately, the seriousness of the arguments — Zucker even brings the charred ruins of the World Trade Center towers into the mix — work against the gags, few of which are remotely funny anyway. The sole laughs are scored by Robert Davi, amusingly playing it straight as a Muslim terrorist who wants to hire Malone to make a suicide-bomber recruitment film.

Marsden coming along as a comedic actor

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

FEATURE Josh Zuckerman, star of the new raucous teen comedy Sex Drive, admits his favourite gags in the film are "anything to do with James Marsden."

In a wild movie that's filled with scenes including a rowdy Amish keg party and a showdown with police while wearing a doughnut costume, Zuckerman's endorsement shows how far Marsden has come as a comic actor since rising to fame as a serious superhero in the X-Men franchise.

Indeed, while Marsden has been lighting up such lighter fare as Hairspray recently, Sex Drive — in theatres next Friday — marks the first film where he steals the show outright.

"I was sure hoping I would be (funny)," admits Marsden during a recent interview in Los Angeles. "It was kind of a leap of faith. Like you go, 'Either this is going to be a career-ender or people are going to really like it and find it funny.'"

In the movie, Marsden plays Rex, the taunting and cocky brother to Zuckerman's Ian — a young virgin who sets out on a road trip in order to meet a sexy sure thing he met on the Internet.

A modern twist on the teen comedies of the '80s, it's perhaps no surprise that Marsden's character is one of the most obnoxious jerks on film since Bill Paxton offered Anthony Michael Hall a "greasy pork sandwich served in a dirty ashtray!" in John Hughes's Weird Science.

"In the teenage years, everybody feels like they're the anomaly, like they're the freak," says Marsden of the teen comedy genre's broad appeal. "I certainly felt that way so all movies like this sort of got (me) through it. Vicariously through John Hughes, I was getting some action."

While Marsden has been receiving accolades for the fearlessness of playing a jerk, he insists that it's harder work acting in more sobering projects like his next film, a psychological thriller called The Box.

"If I were to do live comedy and stuff like that, that would be tough but this, you have a big old safety net," says Marsden.

"You can mess up and not be funny and know it's going to get cut out of the movie. But I find it more difficult to expect somebody to really take you seriously."

Family tales inspired Paul Gross' epic film

PHILIP CROUCHER
philip.croucher@metronews.ca

Paul Gross remembers listening to the gruesome stories his grandfather would tell about the First World War. They were moving, and heart wrenching.

So, when Gross began work on Passchendaele, the filmmaker's grandfather was on his mind as the battles played out in the movie.

"To get that hit, that this is what it was like, was an extraordinary gift," Gross said. "I don't know what kind of breed of men they were. I don't know how they did this. I wouldn't have lasted 20 seconds."

It was the war stories told by his grandfather that ignited Gross's interest in making Passchendaele, a movie set during the height of the First World War.

The film — it opens next Friday — explores the horrific battle, a fight which claimed about a million lives and eventually found Canada victorious thanks to determination, commitment and triumph.

"Really, the movie is a love story with war as the culminating event," said Gross, who is the film's lead actor, writer, director and producer.

"I think it's because gradually I became more interested in the intimacy of warfare. What it does to communities and neighbours and love and innocence."

The movie was filmed in Alberta and took about a year to make. It cost $20 million — high for a Canadian production.

"It did have a lot of money, but if this was a U.S. studio, they wouldn't contemplate it for anything less than $100 million US," said Gross, who is from Calgary. "So, we were still making a very low budget film in comparison, and I can guarantee there wasn't a day that went by on that set where I didn't think I couldn't use another $80 million."

Gross is unsure how his movie will be received, but resigns himself to the fact it's out of his control.

"I just really hope those who do go to see it, and I hope every human being breathing in Canada goes to see it, really feels it was time well spent," he said.

Sailing doc looks at long journey

RICK MCGINNIS
Metro Canada

FEATURE The more than 4,000-kilometre Transpac sailboat race from Los Angeles to Hawaii is gruelling enough for seasoned sailors, but Roy Disney wanted to see how a group of college-aged kids would deal with the brutal week-long journey across the Pacific Ocean.

A sailboat racing veteran — his own boat held the race record from 1999 to 2005 — he's also the former vice-chairman of Disney and knew the journey would make a great movie.

Along with executive producer Leslie DeMeuse, Disney had to find a boat, put together a sailing crew, and get the gear to capture it all — through rough seas and dark nights — during the non-stop race.

Even now that the film, Morning Light, is being released in theatres next Friday, he's amazed that they were able to pull it off.

"We were anticipating the likelihood that the first

A group of 11 college-aged kids sailed in the Transpac race as part of a new documentary.

couple of days of that race is usually hard, upwind, pounding kind of sailing, with a lot of water in the boat and bailing the bilge out constantly and everyone dripping wet," said Disney. "If you stick your head out of the hatch you get it right in the face, and if you do that with a camera it's bye-bye."

Like Disney, DeMeuse has spent years sailing, and says her introduction to the sport was part of her inspiration for Morning Light.

"When I crossed the ocean when I was 16, I had a very small world with my friends, and my father dragged me on that boat kicking and screaming, but it was worth every kick and scream that I did, because it really opened up my whole world," she said.

Kit Will, one of the 11 young people who eventually sailed the Morning Light across the Pacific, has been on boats since he was a toddler, and describes the appeal of sailing in simple but resonant terms.

"When I was a little kid, it was a lot about freedom and the independence of being out there in your little dinghy," said Will. "And it is actually free. The lessons you learn being out there on your own about self-reliance, even if you're with a team, are really important."

Oasis looking back in anger

Incident at Toronto's Virgin Festival overshadows release of Dig Out Your Soul

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

While the recent attack on Oasis guitarist Noel Gallagher was bad — he broke three ribs after a 47-year-old man assaulted him at Toronto's Virgin Festival last month — bassist Andy Bell said things could have been worse.

"I saw Noel lying on the ground," he says on the phone from his London home. "I thought he had been stabbed."

At first Bell was in shock. He saw the crazed fan leap at singer Liam Gallagher after knocking Noel down, but three body guards tackled the suspect before he could do more damage. Although the band finished their set, they had to cancel a number of tour dates — including ones in London, Ont., and Montreal — after they found out that the older Gallagher brother had broken bones.

Needless to say, Bell and the rest of the band aren't too pleased that they're sitting at home while their new record, Dig Out Your Soul, is hitting stores this week. "We're unbelievably angry about this," he says. "It's crazy, right now we should be doing dates, but we're not. This has thrown a huge bomb in the middle of our schedule."

Bell's not sure what will happen to the attacker, and he hasn't found out why Gallagher was hit, but the incident has made them rethink their large festival gigs. "This could have happened anywhere," he says. "The problem for us was that it was a festival. That's the issue we're blaming for this. It's hard to say how we'll address it, but there are professionals who are looking at this and finding out how we can make things safer."

Although the band did finally resume touring this week in Liverpool, this setback has made it more difficult to promote their album. It's too bad too as Dig Out Your Soul could be the band's best effort since their mid-90s heyday. The songs aren't as rocking as What's the Story Morning Glory, and they don't deviate much from their familiar Beat-les-es-que pop, but for the first time in a while the band sound like the are trying again.

It helps that every band member contributed at least a track to the record. Bell's responsible for the upbeat rocker Nature of Reality, and while it's one of the less Oasis-like tracks on the album, making it a refreshing addition to the band's sound, it's not the song the bassist would have picked for the record.

"I would have chosen a different one," he says, pointing out that he actually wrote a number of tunes, despite only one being picked. "Noel sets the tone of the album, then he goes back through the 60 or so songs we've got in a collective pile and he pulls out things that suit his head space. So Nature made more sense with everything together."

Oasis' new album Dig Out Your Soul is now in stores.

Foo Fighters blast McCain over song

POLITICS The Foo Fighters have blasted the campaign of Republican presidential candidate John McCain for using the band's song My Hero at rallies without its permission.

"It's frustrating and infuriating that someone who claims to speak for the American people would repeatedly show such little respect for creativity and intellectual property," the band said in a statement.

Almost too weird for words

First political sound bites recorded by phonograph 100 years ago

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

alan@ongoinghistory.com

Watching all the political debates this past week reminded me of a CD I recently acquired on a whim because it's almost too weird for words. It's a 22-track release of a presidential debate from — wait for it — 1908.

When Thomas Edison invented the phonograph, the last thing he was interested in was recording music. He envisioned the phonograph as a way to capture the words of great men and their great speeches for all time. In 1908, with Teddy Roosevelt not seeking a third term (he could have; it was legal back then), the Republicans nominated William Howard Taft while the Democrats countered with William Jennings Bryan for the third consecutive time.

When they met in a series of debates to discuss issues such as imperialism (Should America stay in the Philippines?), intervention into foreign lands (Are Christian missions any of our business?) and the recent collapse of the American financial system (The Panic of 1907), their addresses were recorded on Edison Talking Machines and distributed on Edison cylinders. In other words, 100 years ago, the media gave us our first political sound bites.

Edison cylinders were fragile things, but given their historical value, examples of the Taft/Jennings debates were preserved. And forgotten.

Enter a company from Champaign, Illinois called Archeophone Records. Since 1998, they've been lovingly preserving and re-issuing ancient sound recordings on CD. Each release comes with thick, heavily-annotated booklets that put these recordings into context from a social, artistic and political point of view.

The Taft/Jennings recordings are fascinating, but Archeophone also has releases that collect songs from the acoustic era of the music industry—the time before microphones, mixing boards and proper studios.

Lost Sounds: Blacks and the Birth of the Recording Industry, 1891-1922 is a window on some of the earlier blues and jazz recordings ever made. Before Radio: Comedy, Drama and Sound Sketches, 1897-1923 offers an idea of the kind of entertainment people would listen to on their Edison machines before anyone even knew what a "radio" was. My favourite is Actionable Offenses: Indecent Phonograph Recordings from the 1890s. If you think today's comedians are out of control, then you need to listen to what was being committed to cylinder more than a century ago. Some of this stuff would get you arrested even today.

Archeophone is highly recommended for people who want to know how the recording industry began. Go to archeophone.com

Every channel will likely be covering this year's polls, though none of them will probably admit that they probably won't have the final tally before they have to give way to late-night syndicated shows and infomercials. Rick Mercer is Canada's Jon Stewart, mostly due to a lack of competition, and like Stewart and Saturday Night Live, he has a civic duty to put on special election programming. Canada's political leaders have always been happy to play along with Mercer and his former colleagues at This Hour Has 22 Minutes, so Mercer's political satire always has a coziness that's both utterly Canadian and occasionally regrettable.

This new comedy from Kenny Hotz of Kenny Vs. Spenny fame arrives packed with gleeful gross-out humour appropriate to the dayglo pun in its title and the reliable presumption that two men together are infinitely more idiotic than a man alone. Two losers make rent money by selling themselves as drug-testing guinea pigs; the pregnant man joke is dispensed with in the pilot, so it's nowhere to go but up from here. The place to go if you want real comic relief from the night's political coverage.

ABC picks up four pilots

ABC Family has picked up two half-hour pilots — 10 Things I Hate About You, based on the Heath Ledger film, and Ruby and the Rockits, starring David Cassidy and Spy Kids veteran Alexa Vega.

10 Things revolves around two sisters — a strong-willed feminist and a social butterfly — facing the challenges of starting out in a new high school. The 1999 film, inspired by Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, was directed by Gil Junger, who will shoot the pilot.

Ruby follows a former teen idol whose quiet life is disrupted when his brother and former band-mate shows up with a newfound teenage daughter. Both pilots will go into production this fall in Los Angeles.

TV execs already talking new season

Intellevision

Rick McGinnis

rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

WORKING CLASS HERO: One sure sign that the current TV season has tanked is that network executives are already talking about the next one. Yesterday, the New York Post ran a story anticipating a revival of the near-flatlined sitcom in response to the second coming of the Great Depression that's supposed to be one more defaulted mortgage away.

According to the Post, the ladies and gentlemen in the offices with the view that doesn't look over the repo yard are even taking credit for anticipating the economic downturn months ago, which suggests that SEC might want to take a look at their portfolios for signs of conspicuous shorting of stocks.

"We anticipated that the economic times were not going to be as strong as they once were," said Ben Silverman, the NBC programming wunderkind who spent most of August in Beijing instead of preparing for his network's new season, "and so, after the writers' strike, we consciously began development on a number of shows featuring working-class heroes."

"One thing that is definitely happening is, as the economic crisis has entered the zeitgeist, certain projects become more relevant and others less," said Jennifer Nicholson Salke, head of comedy and drama development at Fox Television. Just precisely what that means, however, depends on who's doing the interpreting.

"As someone who grew up working class, it was hard to see anything like an accurate reflection of life as I knew it in those shows."

Looking back to the Dirty Thirties, some execs are planning on filling the airwaves with escapist entertainment, or trying to spin their current roster of underperforming shows as killer apps for that turn in the zeitgeist. Kim Rozenfeld, senior VP of dramas at ABC, thinks that Dirty Sexy Money will be the place folks will go at the end of a long day in the breadlines. "I don't think you'd find the Darlings suddenly brought to their knees financially because of the turn in the economic climate," he told the Post. "Dirty Sexy Money is a soap at heart, an escapist show. They are so fabulously wealthy that this is sort of like a hangnail to them."

Fox's Salke thinks it'll be blue collar stories like The Millionaire's Club from Shawn Ryan, creator of The Shield, about "a group of working-class people who get together and pool their cash" to try and turn those blue collars white, one presumption. She also cited something called Two-Dollar Beer starring comic Mike Binder, which will be part of a return to what Salke calls "the Roseanne paradigm."

The problem is that TV's approach to working class life is usually as much a caricature as their soap opera portraits of the rich — think of Roseanne in its last few seasons, or All In The Family for the whole of its run. As someone who grew up working class, it was hard to see anything like an accurate reflection of life as I knew it in those shows; TV has always been most comfortable with the middle class, the incubator of its creative class and the target of its marketing energies.

U.S. Writers Guild bites Ozzy

The Writers Guild of America on Wednesday warned its members not to work on Ozzy Osbourne's new comedy-variety show at Fox.

The union says the show's producer, FremantleMedia North America, offered a "sub-standard contract" asking that writers be treated as if they were working on "half-scripted" shows, which would greatly reduce their writing fees.

But Fremantle, according to the WGA, wanted to treat other portions of the show as "reality content," which would not be covered. Fremantle indicated it would be responsible for writing that part of the show. The WGA refused.

"Now it is clear that Fremantle's intention is to bring their low-cost, nonunion business model into traditional genres — first game shows, then comedy-variety," the WGA said in a letter to members. "Soon, no WGA-covered writing will be safe from their aggressive undermining of our contract. We cannot allow this encroachment to continue."

Fremantle's David Shall, general counsel and executive vp of business operations, accused the WGA of waging a campaign of "defamation and negative propaganda." The WGA, Shall said, was contacted in good faith by Fremantle with the hopes of hiring WGA writers for the "non-traditional" Osbourne show, which mixes variety with reality TV.

Past models

• The writing on the show, with a working title of The Osbournes: Loud and Dangerous, would traditionally be covered under the guild's basic agreement, used in the past for such shows as The Carol Burnett Show and Laugh-In.

Going Out

A timely Tory love story

KIM MANNIX VERMETTE
for Metro Ottawa

When she heard about the Conservative Party's cuts to arts funding, and Stephen Harper's suggestion that "ordinary people" don't care about the arts, Kate Smith had mixed emotions.

On the one hand, the actress and life-long supporter of arts and culture was incensed and insulted.

On the other hand, the comments couldn't have come at a better time for her — and everyone else — involved in staging a production of Conservatives In Love, a modern farce that pokes fun at politics and how the arts are viewed in society.

"When all that came up in the news, it worked out so nicely for us," Smith says.

"It ticked me off as an artist, but being a part of this play I thought 'Wow, this is perfect.'"

Smith is part of a four-person cast that also includes Margo MacDonald, Geoff McBride and Ian Travis. The performers play 10 different roles throughout the course of the show, which focuses on a group of eclectic characters all gathered at a downtown art gallery for a Young Conservatives meeting.

With a lot of running in and out of doors and speedy costume changes, Smith says the physical action adds to what is al-

Margo MacDonald, left, Ian Travis and Kate Smith play multiple characters in the modern farce Conservatives In Love, on until Oct. 18 at the Arts Courts Library.

"(Harper's arts comment) ticked me off as an artist, but being a part of this play I thought 'Wow, this is perfect.'" ready a hilarious script.

Kate Smith

"It's political and it mocks both the right and the left," she says.

"It really questions the value of art, and how do the right and the left vary in their perspectives on art and culture? Is it about consumerism, or that underlying desire to create?"

Director Patrick Gauthier

first saw the play when playwright Dave Carley premiered it at the 2007 Toronto Fringe Festival.

Gauthier knew that he wanted to stage the production in Ottawa during an election run, but didn't begin serious planning until the official election call was made.

Smith says that meant some speedy work on the part of the troupe, who collectively call themselves the Leave The Pants At Home Equity Co-op.

"Pat called us up and said 'Okay, we have less than a month to pull everything together.' It's been hectic, but so much fun too," says Smith.

Gauthier sought permission from the playwright to change a few lines to make them especially topical.

He decided to use alley staging for his show, so the performers have audience members on both sides, close to the action.

Smith says it's easier playing off the audience with the set-up, and she's hoping the comedic action and cheeky lines will keep them laughing.

"I think it's a really great way for people to think about an important political issue, and have fun at the same time."

Conservatives In Love runs through Oct. 18 at the Arts Court Library, 2 Daly Ave. Tickets are $15 or $12 for students and seniors and the show starts at 7:30 p.m.

"Failsafe" is a book that provides understanding of global eco-crises. It issues a call to change the existing world order by arriving at a deep spiritual understanding of what needs to be done. Step by step methods to transform our existing mindset are laid out to usher in a new era of planetary care, social justice and peace.

What They Are Saying About Failsafe

If we no longer perceive the planet as our sacred home, then we will continue to degrade the biosphere. In Failsafe, Ian Prattis offers a way to a perceptual transformation that is absolutely critical if we are to find a truly sustainable future.

Dr. David Suzuki, CBC's The Nature of Things

It's brilliant, so thoroughly researched, eloquently written and, most of all, so needed. It's a wonderful book. Frightening to read while observing the band-aids and half measures being proposed in the US.

Peter Cutler, writer and artist, Boston USA

I am deeply impressed by this holistic treatise. His conclusions are encouraging, to see mother earth and ourselves with the healing hands of a Bodhisattva. A Lotus to him a Buddha to be! Axel Traexler, Global Marshall Plan, Austria

Ian's book respects and reflects on Aboriginal Prophecies about the Eighth Fire and care of the Earth Mother. He investigates the spiritual lack in the modern world and proposes sound means to guide the course of humanity. For this he draws on the Wisdom of the Elders. This is a book for our times. It has his experience of Taming the Wild Mind, serving the Earth and the cause of Peace.

Grandfather William Commanda, 94 year old Algonquin Elder, founder of The Circle of All Nations, received the Key to the City of Ottawa

In Failsafe, Ian Prattis once again clearly, passionately and sagely lays out the environmental crisis coursing through the earth, how it is directly linked to actions and inactions of humans, and more importantly, what we can do to set about changing course. Drawing from an immense range of knowledge, concepts, and experiences, he gives us a route for dramatic and far-reaching change.

Going Out

A veteran of mischief

GetOutThere

Kim Mannix Vermette

kim.mannixvermette@metronews.ca

He asks if he can do a little spoken word for me.

"It will just give you a better sense of what I try to do then you even get from listening to the recorded stuff," he explains.

By the second line I have a deeper appreciation for what Shawn Lavigne means when he talks about his passion for not just writing catchy lyrics, but lyrics with substance.

Nothing is too personal — from commenting on the attitudes of the "hustlers" he sees around him, to talking about the murder of his best friend. There is a lot of grit with the beats, but even if the words are sometimes heavy or bleak, it's clear he loves hip hop.

Lavigne, better known as Mischief to his fans, has been writing and rapping since he was 13. Now 27, he considers himself a veteran of the scene, especially in Ottawa where hip hop performers are too often overlooked as serious artists: "There's a lot of great stuff out there, but a lot of ridiculous stuff too that just reinforces all those stereotypes people have about hip hop."

"I'm not trying to insult anyone. What I do is real."

His own music is peppered with profanity, and contains the obligatory boasting that hip hop tracks seems to require, but there's also the sense that Mischief is never rapping for the sake of it. He has something to say, but it's certainly not making him rich.

He works a day job in construction and says the days of dealing drugs and working the streets are over, even if they were a part of daily life growing up in Ottawa's tougher areas.

A prolific writer, Mischief is releasing a new album this month so those at his shows have something new to take away — "I have messages that I want to relay, and I would do that anyway, but it's cool that people want to listen," he says.

Mischief plays the Roundtable Hip Hop show on Saturday at Maverick, 221 Rideau St. Doors open at 10 p.m. and cover is $10.

Ottawa rapper Mischief performs at Maverick's Saturday night.

Kim Mannix Vermette has a passion for exploring the local music, theatre, visual arts and literature scenes.

Kellie opens up about depression

PEOPLE Last year, Kellie Pickler battled depression and suffered reactions to anti-depressant pills after struggling with family problems and a breakup from her boyfriend, hockey player Jordin Tootoo, People.com reports.

"In my personal life, I was just crumbling," the singer says.

Anti-depressants made her "crazy," she says, and the side effects forced her to quit the pills.

At the same time, she watched her father — a convicted felon who had been released from prison soon after her stint on American Idol — return to jail, while her mother, who abandoned her at age 2, unexpectedly re-emerged.

Her friendships with singers Taylor Swift and Carrie Underwood, along with a new love, songwriter Kyle Jacobs, and writing songs helped her find balance again.

Police to question Butler about assault

LEGAL Gerard Butler is at the centre of a Los Angeles police criminal investigation after allegedly assaulting a photographer, imdb.com reports.

Butler was driven off in a waiting limousine after leaving an L.A. bar at 2 a.m. on Tuesday when a waiting photographer began to follow the actor's vehicle in his own car.

According to TMZ.com, Butler ordered his limousine to stop before climbing out and asking the photographer why he was being followed.

When the man

responded, "Hey, that's my job," Butler allegedly reached in the car, grabbed the photographer's throat and punched him with a closed fist.

According to reports, the paparazzo had to be treated in hospital for his injuries, which were stitched up before he went to file a police report for the incident.

Officials at the Los Angeles Police Department have confirmed they are looking into the case and plan on interviewing the actor.

Jamie Lynn plans to pursue biz degree

EDUCATION Jamie Lynn Spears is planning to go to university to study for a business degree, as soon as her baby daughter is old enough to be left with a nanny, imdb.com reports.

The actress, sister of pop star Britney Spears, isn't content to remain a stay-at-home mom to four-month-old Maddie.

Seventeen-year-old Jamie Lynn is itching to finish her education, and will leave the tot with her mother Lynne so she can go to college.

"I want to get my business degree," she tells Ok! magazine. "I could take online courses right now, but with Maddie being so young, it's hard to sit down and focus. I'm going to wait until she's a little bit older, and she can stay with my mama while I go to classes. I do want to go to college and get a degree."

Stalking suspect faces trial

DENIALS A woman accused of stalking actor John Cusack will stand trial after a plea deal fell through, imdb.com reports.

Diane Leatherman, 33, was arrested outside Cusack's California home in March and charged with one felony count of stalking.

Leatherman was set to accept a deal with a Los Angeles court which would have seen her avoid prison, but it collapsed after she accused her attorney, Brent Merritt, of using scare tactics to get her to agree to the deal. Merritt denied the allegation.

Shot at Botox irks Courteney

BEAUTY Actress Courteney Cox may not be trying Botox again soon, imdb.com reports.

"I went to this doctor once, and he was like, 'Oh, let me do it just here and here and here.' And I was miserable. I mean, I'm an actor, I've got to be able to move my face ... It's not that I haven't tried Botox — but I hated it," she says.

Sixx inspired by girlfriend

RELATIONSHIPS Motley Crue bassist Nikki Sixx says his girlfriend of about eight months, L.A. Ink star Kat Von D, keeps him inspired, People.com reports.

"She's so into art," says Sixx. "I learn from her all the time and we just keep getting closer."

Ben bans trendy names

CHARITY Ben Affleck and Jennifer Garner will choose a traditional name for their unborn child, because the actor dislikes "trendy" baby names in Hollywood, imdb.com reports.

The couple is expecting their second child later this year.

"This makes no sense at all..."

by Joe O'Neill

Courteney Cox has revealed to Marie Claire magazine that she's no fan of Botox, because it would destroy her ability to act. Phew! Big sigh of relief from yours truly. Rejoice with me that we're not going to be robbed of the thespian talents of Courteney Cox in the foreseeable future.

You have to love it when a celebrity makes a breathless admission that attempts to position her as a person not entirely morally compromised by living in the cesspool of venality that is Hollywood. Saying, "I won't use Botox" is right up there with, "If I have one fault, it might be that I care about people too much," or, "The friends I grew up with keep me grounded." You can be sure that when you read these statements, the speaker is probably laughing and thinking, "I'm such a good actor!"

However, I won't dispute that Cox is telling the truth when she says she doesn't use Botox. Botox is as passé as detox these days. The elite have moved on to something else. Nicole Kidman has fewer lines on her face than her newborn daughter, and my sources tell me that a top-secret injected serum made up of dolphin tears, called Flip-pox, is responsible.

Recipe of the day

Chicken breasts with peaches and ginger

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 bunch scallions, trimmed
1 lb (500 g) boneless skinless chicken breasts halves, trimmed
¼ tsp (1 mL) salt
Freshly ground black pepper
2 tsp (10 mL) canola oil
3 tbsp (45 mL) apple cider vinegar
2 tbsp (25 mL) sugar
½ cup (125 mL) no-sugar-added peach juice or apple juice
2 tbsp (25 mL) grated fresh ginger
1 ¼ cup (300 mL) reduced-sodium chicken broth
1 large peach, peeled and sliced (1/2-in/1-cm wedges)
2 tsp (10 mL) cornstarch
2 tsp (10 mL) water

METHOD:

- Chop scallions, reserving all white portions and ¼ cup (50 mL) greens separately.
- If chicken piece are large, cut in half lengthwise so that you have at least 4 pieces. Place chicken between 2 pieces of plastic wrap and pound into ½-in (1-cm) thickness with rolling pin or mallet. Season with salt and pepper.

- Heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Add chicken and brown, 3 to 3 ½ minutes per side. Transfer to plate.
- Add vinegar and sugar to skillet. Stir to dissolve sugar. Cook, swirling skillet, until syrup turns dark amber. Add scallion whites, peach juice and ginger. Bring to boil, stirring to scrape up caramelized bits. Cook for 1 minute. Add broth and peaches. Return to boil. Cook, turning peaches, until tender. Mix cornstarch and water. Add to sauce. Cook, stirring, until slightly thickened. Reduce heat to low. Return chicken and accumulated juices to skillet. Simmer gently until chicken is heated through, about 1 minute. Garnish with reserved scallion greens.
